More than Just a Chair

If someone said there would be a time where we would be wanting to go back to the office and long to sit in our desk chairs, we would never believe it, yet here we are. After spending countless hours sitting in kitchen and dining room chairs, the novelty of working from home has worn off and people find themselves missing the simple luxury of their office chair.

An office chair offers many physical benefits such as ergonomic support, enhanced comfort levels and customizable features. Well-constructed chairs properly support users as they move throughout the day, allowing them to solely focus on the task at hand and increase productivity rates.

However, high-quality seating options go beyond physical benefits to also deliver emotional value. A study called “Emotionalism in Furniture Design” explains the emotional importance of furniture design and how strong this connection can be: “it’s so strong that people will keep a piece of furniture [...] even after it is broken”. It goes on to suggest that furniture can “fulfill meaningful and emotional needs”.

Once someone sits in their chair it becomes part of their corporate identity, they claim ownership over it and become attached. This bond is why some people refuse to get a new chair despite their current one being out of date or beyond repair. With that in mind, customers should look to invest in quality seating products that deliver valuable physical and emotional benefits.

Nightingale creates quality, hand-crafted seating products that provide customers with significant financial, physical and emotional value. A Nightingale chair is a financial investment that is built to last. Our state-of-the-art testing facility and innovation lab result in the development of high ergonomic and comfort standards. Combined with several adjustable features and customizable options, Nightingale chairs deliver exceptional physical value. Emotional value grows overtime but starts with knowing that each chair is made in our waste-free facility with recycled materials. The hassle-free parts warranty and excellent after-sale service allows customers to enjoy their chair for as long as possible.

Nightingale uniquely creates each product with an intended physical and emotional purpose. Each chair has an emotional response that correlates to its physical features. Its design sparks an emotional response that can bring the user a sense of calm, focus, excitement, creativity, etc. to help them make the most of their workday. For example, the Bless task chair is affordable, durable and comfortable; it offers freedom of motion to match the user's creative output. Bless' physical composition enables users to feel confident, free and creative as they take on the day.

Cricket II: Now with Casters

Nightingale's functional and comfortable Cricket II stackable guest chair now comes with casters. The 502-CA model enhances the Cricket II's traditional curved back and waterfall seat design to provide users with enhanced comfort and support with the added benefits of mobility and freedom.

The flared arms are integral to the chair's structure and function as they connect to the angled legs that allow for stability and smooth movement of the 2" carpet casters.

The newest Cricket II model features:

- Lumbar Support
Compound curved back provides superior comfort and support.
- Upholstered Seat & Back
With high density foam for durability and comfort that can be upholstered in our wide selection of textiles.
- More Comfort
Wider seat and back for elevated comfort and support.
- Waterfall Seat
Designed to reduce muscle fatigue.
- Durable Frame
Flared black nylon arms with a frame 7/8" outside diameter, made from heavy duty round tubular steel, provides the chair with its structure and ability to support the user as they move.
- Smooth Movement
2" carpet casters with angled legs for stability.

Find Your Fit with the Danforth II

Nightingale's Danforth II is a modular lounge seating option that adds a classic presence to any space. The Danforth II is easy to move and can be simply assembled in minutes, without tools.

This comfortable and stylish seat is made up of parts that snap and lock into place for solid, secure comfort. Customers can choose from a single club chair and two and three-seat sofas.

The Danforth can be upholstered in a variety of high-quality textiles that will bring bold colors and textures to any area. The Danforth II comes standard with straight arms, however customers can select modern-flared or rolled arm options to further customize their lounge seat.

Other options to enhance your Danforth II are the built-in swivel tablet top that can go on either arm of the chair, a USB port for convenient charging access and optional polished aluminum round legs for extra style.

With easily replaceable components the Danforth II is built to last. Its modular form makes this lounge seat versatile and economical as it can be tailored to fit small or large spaces.
